T. P. BURKE, Agent. Dear Sir:—The Excelsior Reaper and Mower

SENTIMENTS OF THE PRESS ON THEIR ENTERTAINMENT IN CLARKSVILLE.

From the Louisville Evening News.

The meeting of the Tennessee Press Association, which closed at Clarksville last Friday, was very pleasant one. The citizens of Clarksville, who are the very personification of hospitality, were undering in efforts to render their guests comfortable; especially was this true of those who entertained the delegation from the Kentucky Press Association, who were treated in a most pleasant and comfortable manner.

After the close of the business session on Friday afternoon, which our lack of space will not allow to be further mentioned, an excursion was taken to Dunbar's cave, a romantic spot, some three miles from the city on the Russellville turnpike. The temperature of this cave, which was prepared by a comfortable distance by the party, is very low and especially dangerous to those who are subject to pulmonary complaints.

The writer of this article has witnessed the return from the inner recesses of the cold cavern, and if his advice is followed, he will be forced to learn the sign language in order to communicate with his fellow-men.

Friday night a splendid banquet was given by the association by the citizens of Clarksville at the Franklin House, the Southern being unoccupied at present. An immense crowd of invited persons were present and enjoyed themselves to the utmost, not a single unpleasant incident occurring to mar the pleasure of the affair.

The banquet hall and ball rooms were most elegantly decorated with evergreens and rare flowers by the ladies of Clarksville, and the pleasure of the company had been arranged. The long and heavily-jaded tables were beautiful sights, and the abundance of the food was between those two sister States, and especially between their press associations, which is destined to grow stronger with each successive year.

The music, it is needless to say, was excellent, being furnished by the incomparable Elchorn and a detailed of his great Western Star Band of this city. At a very late hour the sounds of music and the chatter of merry voices were hushed, and as the first of dawn began to spread over the Eastern sky, Clarksville, happy in a hospitable duty well performed, saw the results of the night's work. The plumage of the night birds within her gates for three days gathered up and shooed, and made preparations for the homeward journey. The morning of the 14th was of the charming little city that sits upon more hills than Rome, upon and amidst the hills of the West.

May her good people be ever happy, and the temperature of her Dunbar's cave be raised until there is nothing about it to disturb or afraid the most consumptive of her visitors.

From the Nashville American.

* * * After the Association had been photographed by McCormac, and the Clarksville Press, the members of the Association left for their homes. The benefit of Rev. Dr. Plummer, Principal, who will use it to keep the girls in the city at all times to the benefit of the city, and

ence to the flowing bowl, and all who do not, heartily and without reserve, agree with us that, in the annals of the Tennessee Press Association, the name of Clarksville will be marked with the whitest of stones, and that, to each individual member, the recollection of his visit there, in the "leafy month of June" of Seventy-seven, will remain as "Sweetest of sweet memories of the past."

From the Paris Gazette.

The banquet given by the citizens of Clarksville to the Associated Press on Friday evening was one of the grandest affairs we have ever seen

The Southern hotel was decorated in the finest style that woman's cultivate taste could suggest. The edibles were all that the epicure desired. Gentlemen of the highest order of intelligence and culture, excelled by but few bodies of equal delight. Music's softest melodies lifted up the souls of the young and seemed to fling a glow of youth up on the cheek of age. Old men were made young again. Beauty, arrayed in all her charms, graced the occasions and smiled the young men's hearts away to some Eden or whose rosy walks hymen preside.

We have but seldom, if ever, seen so much beauty assembled at one place. Clarksville may well be proud of her beautiful and accomplished daughters.

From the Paris Intelligence.

We had the pleasure of attending the annual meeting of the Tennessee Press Association, which met last week in the city of Clarksville. The good people of this beautiful city entertained the Association in a very hospitable manner, but in real reality style.

The various committees most promptly and efficiently performed the duties assigned them, and the citizens vied with each other in making the visit of the Press most agreeable. Every attention was paid to the most refined hospitality can bestow, was lavished upon the Association as a body, and its members invidually. Long will be remembered and kindly will be cherished, the overflowing kindness of the refined people of Clarksville by every member of the Association. Her hospitality was a subject of admiration
